14th January 2022

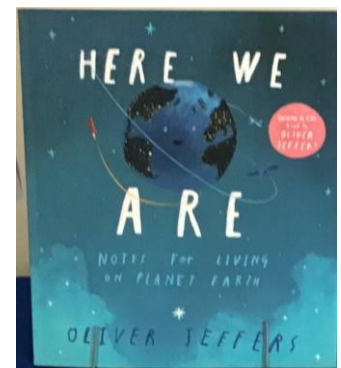

Dear Parents,

We have had a great week in school, particularly in our English lessons. As you may have seen on Tapestry we are following a whole school text, it is always such a pleasure to have shared experiences across the classes and this text is the perfect focus for coming together and community, as well as conservation and health. We look forward to sharing some of the written outcomes with you next week.

In collective worship this half term our value is Justice, children started by thinking about whether fairness is everyone

having the same or not.

Children demonstrated how they can think about others and express the importance of people getting what they need. When reflecting on the story of The Rainbow Fish, one of the children said "It isn't about what you have, it is about what you give." Over this half term we will think about doing the right thing and the importance of listening and understanding both sides of the story when we are trying to solve problems.

Special Awards this week:

Hedgehog Class

Belkisa for being beautifully behaved and a super role model all of the time.

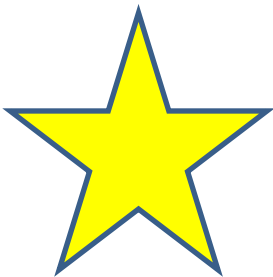

Badger Class

Kelcie for working really hard in all areas of her learning including her homework facts

Fox Class

George for working extremely hard on his maths and showing great perseverance

Book of the Week

George chose a Tom Gates book, they still seem to be our most popular choice so far! Charlotte was picked out for next week so we look forward to her recommendation.
